PAUL KELLY

Born in Dublin in 1968, Paul started painting and drawing at an early age, and since then he has gone on to establish a wide reputation both here in Ireland and abroad. Completely self taught, Kelly paints in a conventional 'pre-impressionist' style both in oils and watercolour. Known for his paintings of North County Dublin with its busy fields, market gardens and small harbours he has been regularly travelling all over Ireland in search of new inspiration and even further afield with painting trips to Morocco, Prague, Budapest and Venice.

He has had many successful one man 'sell out' exhibitions and regularly exhibits in selective groups shows around the country. He has also exhibited frequently at the Royal Hibernian Academy in Dublin, and in 1991 obtained the James Kennedy memorial award for portraiture. Works by him are included in many public and private collections including the National Self Portrait Collection of Ireland, the Fingal county library and the Brian P. Burns Collection, USA. In 1999 he was included in "Who's Who in Ireland" and "A Buyers Guide to Irish Art".

In 2000 his painting "The Liffey Rowers" was exhibited at the John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts, Washington. In 2004, with the kind permission of the Lambay Island estate he exhibited a body of work entitled "Lambay, Portrait of an Island" which was received with great public and critical acclaim. In 2005 Paul moved to county Longford and in 2007 he went on a painting trip to Venice. The following year he returned there where he worked in Ken Howard's R.A. studio. A portrait of Norman Teeling in Howard's studio was exhibited at the Royal Hibernian Academy last year.

NORMAN TEELING

Norman Teeling is a Dublin born artist who's career has spanned some 35 years. He is a graduate of the National College of Art and Design and holds an art teachers qualification.

Norman began a successful career as a teacher, stage set designer, sign writer and cartoonist for two national newspapers, 'The Irish Press' and 'Sunday World'. He also worked for 12 years in the animation film industry.

In recent years his fascination for painting 'En Plein Air' motivated him to produce a book on the subject, entitled 'Painting The Irish Landscape in oils'. In 2007 a successful exhibition to launch the book was held at the Gorry Gallery.

The move from a more restricted studio form of painting to a looser brush style and freer expression of impressionism has become his hallmark
